Let Love Rule John H. Nichols 2010-05-26 When the Apostle John was elderly, he would often be brought to a place where Christians were gathered so they could ask him all sorts of spiritual questions. Every time he would respond by saying, "Beloved, love one another." Eventually those present finally asked John why his response was always the same and he replied that this was the commandment of Christ, and if every believer could just live out this one truth, that would be enough. How right John was. For this to happen however I've become convinced that we need to first better understand God's great, amazing love for us through Christ. Only then, once our souls become saturated with the love of Christ, can we truly "love one another" the way He intended. This is what it means to Let Love Rule John H. Nichols is a graduate of Taylor University and has been in full-time ministry since 1992. He is currently serving as one of the Teaching Elders at Four Peaks Community Church in Fountain Hills, Arizona. John resides in Fountain Hills with his wife and two children.

Live and Let Love Andrea Buchanan 2011-02-01 An award-winning actress. A soldier's wife. A cancer survivor. A college student. What these women—what all of us—have in common is a need for love: to give it, to receive it, to express its many aspects. Now Andrea Buchanan, who Cosmopolitan called the “girl power guru,” follows her first collection, Note to Self, with a new compilation of thought-provoking, illuminating, often poignant essays on love written by some of America's most fascinating and vibrant women. Join author and cancer survivor Kelly Corrigan, describing why her most romantic fantasy now involves sitting on the sofa opening the mail; journalist Giselle Fernandez, sharing why, even though the journey can sometimes end painfully, an adventure in love should never be passed up; Afghanistan war widow Marie Tillman on learning to open her heart again after the devastating loss of her husband, Pat; celebrity stylist Tameka Raymond on the challenges of marrying the rap star Usher in the glare of the public eye; and college student Jaclyn Katz on how her “perfect” traditional family fell apart, and her mother's brother and his partner gave her back the stability that could have been lost forever. These courageous women have portrayed their own innermost emotions and laid bare their own experiences for readers to learn from, laugh at, and lean on.

Lets Make it all for love Ruchi It is a story about a small town girl who starts her journey of arranged marriage believing in God and her parents more than herself in deciding her partner. It proceeds on how she tries to seek love and show love to her partner who she feels also loves her. As she is full of love and a bubbly person with life, in arranged marriage system she faces new situations, which leads to misunderstandings and misconceptions between the two. The girl keeps on believing and puting efforts which sometime, due to fortune or misinterpretation land up as her mistake, creating a gap between the couple. Story is set up in Hindu marriage system and tells us someway how women think and how men should judge her. For the girl, God plays an important role in the story as she keeps on explaining herself and asks for help to him when the story turns serious and the girl becomes deprived of love until the end where the story sums up with a sweet end. A series of misconceptions and stupid fights explains them about each other, which leads to a happy and love filled ending. It is a very sweet, simple, love filled story, weaved in a very common, ordinary situation. The only difference it holds is in the explanation and point of view which is generally positive and yet sensitive towards own self and society. The story is a comic ride in the initial pages as the explanation of arranged marriage and women psychology is dealt while small love moments all through the story connect it to the reader and their interest is held in a simple way. The language opted in this book is a blend of Hindi and English so as to connect the folks with reality and help in bringing out the emotions more appropriately and hence give the reader a sense of reality and truth after reading this book.
