Visual Thinking Strategies Philip Yenawine 2013-10-01 "What's going on in this picture?" With this one question and a carefully chosen work of art, teachers can start their students down a path toward deeper learning and other skills now encouraged by the Common Core State Standards. The Visual Thinking Strategies (VTS) teaching method has been successfully implemented in schools, districts, and cultural institutions nationwide, including bilingual schools in California, West Orange Public Schools in New Jersey, and the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art. It provides for open-ended yet highly structured discussions of visual art, and significantly increases students' critical thinking, language, and literacy skills along the way. Philip Yenawine, former education director of New York's Museum of Modern Art and cocreator of the VTS curriculum, writes engagingly about his years of experience with elementary school students in the classroom. He reveals how VTS was developed and demonstrates how teachers are using art—as well as poems, primary documents, and other visual artifacts—to increase a variety of skills, including writing, listening, and speaking, across a range of subjects. The book shows how VTS can be easily and effectively integrated into elementary classroom lessons in just ten hours of a school year to create learner-centered environments where students at all levels are involved in rich, absorbing discussions.

Dementia-Mama-Drama Vincent Zappacosta 2020-06 Welcome to the relationship of a modern family... a mother, her son and his husband. Today's family may look different but the feelings are the same as we all begin to switch roles caring for our aging parents. "Dementia-Mama-Drama" is our story of the daily doses of dementia as caregivers for Mama. Join the bumpy bittersweet ride that we shared together. We dealt with it all through the power of love, music and humor. The book is a hopeful, humorous and helpful look at Alzheimer's highlighted with many photos. Mama wanted her story to be told and we promised her that we would. It follows our ups and downs with the disease by sharing how we used humor in a seemingly hopeless situation, making lemonade out of our lemons. We know many of you will relate to our experiences and that our "Daily Doses" will bring a smile or a tear helping you through your own "Dementia Drama".

The Activity Year Book Anni Bowden 2009-03-15 Engagement in meaningful activity is an important aspect of human existence, regardless of one's cognitive abilities. Even in the later stages of dementia, people can still be engaged in activities at a level that allows them to be successful. In fact in these later stages, where cognitive abilities may be waning, the need for activity becomes greater, as cognitive stimulation helps preserve what skills remain. For care staff looking after older people, many of whom may have some degree of dementia, coming up with ideas for activities of a suitable level to keep their residents engaged and stimulated can be challenging. The Activity Year Book solves this problem, offering week by week themed activities. From Valentine's Day quizzes to Bonfire Night word searches, it has activities relating to every important date in the calendar, and also encourages reminiscence and discussion around these events. This book will be invaluable to care staff looking for a simple way of improving the lives of their residents, week by week, all year round.

Activities for Older People in Care Homes Sarah Crockett 2013-07-15 When tasked with providing activities for older people in care homes, it can be difficult to know where to begin. Written by an experienced activity coordinator, this handbook is an indispensable companion for others in this role. The author provides useful background information on dementia, the importance of activities and how to get to know residents through life story work. Mirrors of the Camino Randy Bateman Stephen Bateman 2020-07-18 Mirrors of the Camino is a dual journey of a 21st century couple, Randy and Patty, in their 60s, hiking the Camino de Santiago, sharing how they came to walk their first Camino and their experiences along the way, including their obsession with travel foreplay. You can endure with them their physical and emotional challenges, watch as they develop new friendships with a diverse group of hikers from all parts of the globe and witness their encounters with, and personal explorations of, a new spirituality offered by the Camino. There is also a 'Keep Portland Weird' current flowing throughout, with frequent "Foodie" detours. All of these experiences are paired with the Renaissance era commentary of an actual sixteenth century protestant minister Stephen, who not only bears the same surname and ancestral origins as his co-author, but authored his own book in the Middle Ages on pilgrimages. Randy's and Stephen's stories reveal the striking similarities and perhaps not so surprising differences between pilgrimages of the Middle Ages and those of the twenty first century. You will read very detailed personal accounts told from the experiences of these two co-authors. COVID 19 changed our world. This book was written before COVID 19, and I elected not to update it before publication to address it. Being sheltered in place should not stop your planning and dreaming about future pilgrimages. This is a travelogue with historical depth, told from two historical vantagepoints and spans five centuries. During this dark time when you are left only to fantasize about adventure travel, slip into your hiking gear, load up your backpack and take a hike with your hiking sticks around your block and when you return, settle in with a nice vintage vino tinto and indulge in some fun travel foreplay about the Camino and life in general.

Let's Talk about Death (over Dinner) Michael Hebb 2018-10-02 For readers of Being Mortal and When Breath Becomes Air, the acclaimed founder of Death over Dinner offers a practical, inspiring guide to life's most difficult yet important conversation. Of the many critical conversations we will all have throughout our lifetime, few are as important as the ones discussing death—and not just the practical considerations, such as DNRs and wills, but what we fear, what we hope, and how we want to be remembered. Yet few of these conversations are actually happening. Inspired by his experience with his own father and countless stories from others who regret not having these conversations, Michael Hebb cofounded Death Over Dinner—an organization that encourages people to pull up a chair, break bread, and really talk about the one thing we all have in common. Death Over Dinner has been one of the most effective end-of-life awareness campaigns to date; in just three years, it has provided the framework and inspiration for more than a hundred thousand dinners focused on having these end-of-life conversations. As Arianna Huffington said, "We are such a fast-food culture, I love the idea of making the dinner last for hours. These are the conversations that will help us to evolve." Let's Talk About Death (over Dinner) offers keen practical advice on how to have these same conversations—not just at the dinner table, but anywhere. There's no one right way to talk about death, but Hebb shares time—and dinner—tested prompts to use as conversation starters, ranging from the spiritual to the practical, from analytical to downright funny and surprising. By transforming the most difficult conversations into an opportunity, they become celebratory and meaningful—ways that not only can change the way we die, but the way we live.
