Validating Technological Innovation David Coniam 2016-04-02 This book discusses Hong Kong's use of onscreen marking (OSM) in public examinations. Given that

Hong Kong leads the way in OSM innovation, this book has arisen from a recognised need to provide a comprehensive, coherent account of the findings of various separate but linked validation studies of onscreen public examinations in Hong Kong. The authors discuss their experience of the validation process, demonstrating how high-stakes innovation should be fully validated by a series of research studies in order to satisfy key stakeholders.

Facets of Power Richard Saunders 2016-04-18 The diamond fields of Chiadzwa, among the worlds largest sources of rough diamonds have been at the centre of struggles for power in Zimbabwe since their discovery in 2006. Against the backdrop of a turbulent political economy, control of Chiadzwas diamonds was hotly contested. By 2007 a new case of blood diamonds had emerged, in which the countrys security forces engaged with informal miners and black market dealers in the exploitation of rough diamonds, violently disrupting local communities and looting a key national resource. The formalisation of diamond mining in 2010 introduced new forms of large-scale theft, displacement and rights abuses. Facets of Power is the first comprehensive account of the emergence, meaning and profound impact of Chiadzwas diamonds. Drawing on new fieldwork and published sources, the contributors present a graphic and accessibly written narrative of corruption and greed, as well as resistance by those who have suffered at the hands of the minerals secretive and violent beneficiaries. If the lessons of resistance have been mostly disheartening ones, they also point towards more effective strategies for managing public resources, and mounting democratic challenges to elites whose power is sustained by preying on them.

A-level Chemistry E. N. Ramsden 2000 Each topic is treated from the beginning, without assuming prior knowledge. Each chapter starts with an opening section covering an application. These help students to understand the relevance of the topic: they are motivational and they make the text more accessible to the majority of students. Concept Maps have been added, which together with Summaries throughout, aid understanding of main ideas and connections between topics. Margin points highlight key points, making the text more accessible for learning and revision. Checkpoints in each chapter test students' understanding and support their private study. A selection of questions are included at the end of each chapter, many form past examination papers. Suggested answers are provided in the Answers Key.

Economic Management in a Hyperinflationary Environment George Kararach 2016-02-11 This volume provides an accessible and up-to-date account of the difficulties that the Zimbabwean economy and its population experienced during the crisis which peaked in 2008. It details the suffering and chaos that befell the country with dramatic socio-economic consequences on growth, macroeconomic stability, service delivery, livelihoods, and development. The volume seeks to provide a political economy analysis of leadership and economic management in developing economies based on Zimbabwe's experience. It examines the triggers of the crisis, and the negative impact on productive sectors such as manufacturing and agriculture, social sectors such as education and health, and on financial services. The volume will be of interest to students of policy and economic management, as well as to government departments, central banks in developing countries, development agencies, donors, and NGOs.

The Last Queen C. W. Gortner 2008-07-29 In this stunning novel, C. W. Gortner brings to life Juana of Castile, the third child of Queen Isabel and King Ferdinand of Spain, who would become the last queen of Spanish blood to inherit her country's throne. Along the way, Gortner takes the reader from the somber majesty of Spain to the glittering and lethal courts of Flanders, France, and Tudor England. Born amid her parents' ruthless struggle to unify and strengthen their kingdom, Juana, at the age of sixteen, is sent to wed Philip, heir to the Habsburg Empire. Juana finds unexpected love and passion with her dashing young husband, and at first she is content with her children and her married life. But when tragedy strikes and she becomes heir to the Spanish throne, Juana finds herself plunged into a battle for power against her husband that grows to involve the major monarchs of Europe. Besieged by foes on all sides, Juana vows to secure her crown and save Spain from ruin, even if it costs her everything. BONUS: This edition contains an excerpt from C. W. Gortner's The Queen's Vow. Praise for The Last Queen "This moving tale of Juana la Loca (the Mad) vividly re-creates the passion, politics, and betrayals that drove a smart and spirited queen to the brink of insanity . . . or perhaps, as C. W. Gortner suggests, to the pretense of insanity—a pretense that baffled Juana's enemies and led to triumph for her children and her country. The Last Queen is an absorbing account of one of history's most fascinating women, from her never-before-told point of view."—Donna Woolfolk Cross, author of Pope Joan "I ached for this intelligent, one-of-a-kind queen. Her struggle and passion kept me up until the early hours of the morning. A page-turner, a nail-biter, an eye-opener: I loved being possessed by The Last Queen!"—Ki Longfellow, author of The Secret Magdalene "A vibrant tapestry of love and hate . . . brings to life an extraordinary queen at an unforgettable time in history."—Sandra Worth, author of Lady of the Roses "An exquisite evocation of a dangerous era and of a forgotten queen."—Holly Payne, author of The Virgin's Knot "Gripping and unforgettable . . . captures Juana of Castile's electrifying drama."—Judith Merkle Riley, author of The Water Devil

Frank Wood's A-Level Accounting Frank Wood 1998 This new edition of Frank Wood's A-Level Accounting has been brought up-to-date with the latest syllabus changes and developments in the field. It covers the more advanced aspects of the syllabus and builds on a first-course in the subject, tackling the more advanced aspects of company accounting such as group accounts, and the basics of management accounting. As well as providing instruction and practice in the preparation of accounting information, the text stresses the need for students to understand the business reasons behind the accounting techniques. A continuing strength of the book is the large amount of question material provided for practice. Recent past questions from the main examining bodies are included, as well as a useful guide to examination technique at A-Level.

Principles of Accounting Volume 1 - Financial Accounting Mitchell Franklin 2019-04-11 The text and images in this book are in grayscale. A hardback color version is available. Search for ISBN 9781680922929. Principles of Accounting is designed to meet the scope and sequence requirements of a two-semester accounting course that covers the fundamentals of financial and managerial accounting. This book is specifically designed to appeal to both accounting and non-accounting majors, exposing students to the core concepts of accounting in familiar ways to build a strong foundation that can be applied across business fields. Each chapter opens with a relatable real-life scenario for today's college student. Thoughtfully designed examples are presented throughout each chapter, allowing students to build on emerging accounting knowledge. Concepts are further reinforced through applicable connections to more detailed business processes. Students are immersed in the "why" as well as the "how" aspects of accounting in order to reinforce concepts and promote comprehension over rote memorization.

Accounting for Technical Efficiency Differentials Among Smallholder Tobacco Farmers in Hurungwe Zimbabwe Gwenzi Mhondoro 2018 This study used farm-level data to test whether contract farming can account for technical efficiency differentials amongst smallholder tobacco farmers from Hurungwe District in Zimbabwe independent of self-selection bias, in response to the need (i) to inform policy on contract farming in Zimbabwe as an agricultural finance model, and (ii) the literature on impact evaluation which hypothesizes that contract participation is not a random process. A sample of 240 smallholder tobacco farmers was split into a treatment (contract farmers) and a control group (non-contract farmers) to enable comparison. Using 2016/17 farm-level production data collected through face-to-face interviews by means of structured questionnaires, the study compared 75 contract and 165 non-contract farmers purposefully selected through stratified random sampling. A Cobb-Douglas Stochastic Frontier Production Function (SPF) model was used to estimate technical efficiency differentials across the sub-samples before and after accounting for self-selection bias using Propensity Score Matching (PSM) techniques. Without accounting for self-selection bias, the results show that contract farmers had a mean technical efficiency score of 83 percent (95 percent CI 0.799: 0.851) compared to 81 percent (95 percent CI 0.794: 0.819) for non-contract farmers. A t-test for equality of means showed no significant differences between the two groups ( $t=-1.4332$ ,  $p=0.153$ ), suggesting that participation in contract farming cannot account for the observed technical efficiency differentials. However, using PSM techniques to account for self-selection bias and the stratified matching algorithm, the results show that contract farmers were on average 4.8 percent ( $t=4.075$ ,  $p=0.012$ ) more technically efficient relative to their non-contract counterparts, suggesting that accounting for self-selection bias matters in evaluating the impact. In the second stage of the SPF, bio-physical, socio-economic and policy variables were used as covariates to investigate determinants of technical efficiency across the two groups. For this group of farmers, the results suggest that household size ( $t=2.34$ ,  $p=0.020$ ) education level ( $t=1.96$ ,  $p=0.061$ ), access to extension services ( $t=2.22$ ,  $p=0.027$ ) and tobacco farming experience ( $t=3.48$ ,  $p=0.001$ ), and membership to a farmers' group ( $t=2.84$ ,  $p=0.008$ ) showed a positive effect on technical efficiency. Meanwhile area allocated to tobacco farming ( $t=-2.57$ ,  $p=0.011$ ) and off-farm income ( $t=-2.49$ ,  $p=0.013$ ) showed a negative effect on technical efficiency. These results suggest that, in addition to formulating policies that promote contract farming, policy makers should also work on policies that improve access to extension services, education, promote the formation of farmers' groups and encourage farmers to join them if productivity in smallholder tobacco farming sector is to be increased. In a final model, the study established that membership to farmers' groups ( $t=1.92$ ,  $p=0.054$ ), agricultural field day attendance ( $t=2.86$ ,  $p=0.004$ ), and farm size ( $t=4.65$ ,  $p=0.000$ ) increased the probability that farmers will choose to participate in contract farming. Thus, to promote contract farming, the government and policy makers play an important role by encouraging farmers to join farmers' groups, attend agricultural field days in addition to making farmland accessible. In conclusion, there exist considerable productivity losses due to inefficiency among this group of smallholder tobacco farmers that could be addressed at policy level. The study recommends contract farming as one policy vehicle that could be used to address such inefficiencies in capital-constrained smallholder agriculture. Further the existence of self-selection bias in contract participation must be addressed before assessing the impact of contract farming on technical efficiency of smallholder tobacco farmers. While acknowledging the role of contract farming in addressing productivity losses in the smallholder tobacco farming sector, the study also noted that there are additional variables that could be targeted by policy if these efficiency losses are to be addressed.
